164.11-1-16 33 South Main

Built	1873-'74	Martin Wilcox Babcock and Alpheus Burdick Kenyon	Built as a two-apartment house, Babcocks were parents of A.B. Kenyon's wife, M. Veola
Modified	189?		Halloween night fire in woodshed behind house charred back of house
Modified	after 189? fire	Alpheus Burdick Kenyon	After fire, new 1 1/2 story workshop added to back of house, connecting roofed passage led from shop to outhouse
Modified	by 1913	Alpheus Burdick Kenyon	Porch built on north side, first as un-roofed, then screened-in; then second floor added to porch and it was roofed and screened-in
Modified	before 1931	Alpheus Burdick Kenyon	Roof built over south entrance and cellar entry bulkhead
	by 1928		Village sewage system added
	by 1931		Electricity added
	1945		Front cellar stairs converted to hall closet
	after 1954		Picture window added to (dining) north room upstairs, original window moved to downstairs (north) bedroom, to add light
	1973	David Stillman Clarke and G. Douglas Clarke	Partition in upstairs kitchen removed, cabinets moved and added; workshop loft converted to bedroom, with half door into back room upstairs

While this home was being built, the Kenyons lived in Elder Nathan Vars Hull's home (a cupola-ed house between Reynolds Street and West University Street, and later they stayed at 35 South Main Street, until the home was completed in 1874.
My grandmother, Agnes Kenyon Clarke Bond, assisted by my father, David Stillman Clarke, wrote a booklet entitled "House Our Father Built -- in which our Home was born" which tells much of the story of the house which, including our son, Ian Timothy Clarke, has now been lived in by six consecutive generations of our family. That booklet, and some errata and additions grandmother wrote before she died, will be made available to those with interest. I am working on additional chapters.